*Vito
Basile '56:
Rebuilding a Life*

At age 53, Vito Basile suffered a stroke causing him to lose his sight, his hearing, and his job. Now after only four years, he has rebuilt his life and edged out some 6,300 blind workers across the country to be named 1992 National Blind Worker of the Year.

After graduating from Bryant in 1956, Vito moved to Miami and began his 27-year career with the US Customs Service, working his way up to the position of director at the Port of Palm Beach. Working on illegal drug operations, Vito says he netted anywhere from 200 pounds to 6,900 pounds of cocaine.

In April 1988, Vito was assailed by bypass surgery, pneumonia, and brain lesions. Then he slipped into a six-week coma.

Miraculously he recovered and tried to return to work. "I had trouble accepting the fact that I was blind," said Vito, who used to golf and play racquetball. "I knew I was becoming a burden to the Customs Service."

Aided by his wife, Marianne, Vito received training and counseling from the Lighthouse for the Blind. The program strengthened his self-esteem and empowered him to return to full-time employment. Vito now packages plastic utensils for the Lighthouse and enjoys taking walks and going bowling. "He has discovered there are things he can do," said Marianne Basile. "He's got some of his sense of humor back." He has also learned to ride the bus from his home in Palm Beach Gardens to the Lighthouse office in West Palm Beach.

Vito was honored as the 1992 National Blind Worker of the Year because of his hard work and ability to overcome overwhelming odds. According to Vito, "When I came here, I just wanted to be a good worker. I never thought I would be awarded for that. It just overwhelms me."

 Editor's Note: This essay is based on an article written by William Cooper Jr., staff writer for the Palm Beach Post. The article by Mr. Cooper appeared in the March 29, 1992, edition of the Post and was sent to the Bryant College Alumni Office individually by several alumni who read Vito Basile's story and were touched by his strength.*

Continuing Your Education

Challenges and Opportunities, the second annual series of Alumni Continuing Education Programs, will begin on Tuesday evening, August 25, with Dealing with Workaholism from 6:30 to 8:30 p.m. Led by Barbara Slater, manager of evening non-credit professional continuing education courses at Bryant's CENTER for Management Development, this program will examine the difference between someone who simply loves his or her work and a workaholic. Participants will explore attitudes and beliefs about work and its purpose and formulate personal goals for achieving a more positive attitude about the role of work in their lives. Cost, including a light supper and all program materials, is $25.

Back by popular demand, Career Transitions will be held from 8:30 a.m. to 3:00 p.m. on Saturday, September 26. Also, a panel of human resource professionals will discuss what companies look for in employees. The specially discounted price of $20 includes lunch.

Task Force Affects Alumni

One of the results of the Task Force on Alumni Relations which will directly impact alumni is the refocusing on communications with alumni. Through focus groups, it was discovered that most alumni enjoy the Newsletter and would like to receive it more frequently. Also, a more contemporary look may invite a larger readership. Therefore, a change in the next few issues of this piece may be noticed. Your comments would be most appreciated and should be sent to Jill (Charpentier) Nosach '86, Bryant College Alumni Relations Office, 1150 Douglas Pike, Smithfield, RI 02917-1284.

In dissolving the current hierarchical structure of the Alumni Association, we are implementing a geographically-based, task-oriented organization. Some of the changes initiated by the metamorphosis include:

■ The reformation of the Rhode Island Alumni Chapter: The first meeting was held on June 24. To participate in future events, call Paula (Pascone) Iacono '69 at 401-232-6040.

■ A strong emphasis on alumni assistance in student recruitment: thus the creation of the Bryant Enrollment Support Team (BEST). See page 2 for details.

■ Increased interest in career services for alumni: for example the Alumni Continuing Education series, Opportunities and Challenges, featuring fall programs on Workaholism and Career Transitions. See page 3 for details.

To learn more about your Alumni Association, please call Paula or Jill at 401-232-6040.
